Evidence Based Decisions And Economics Evidence Based Decisions And Economics:

Evidence-based Decisions and Economics Ian Shemilt, Miranda Mugford, Luke Vale, Kevin Marsh, Cam Donaldson, 2011-09-22 The need for evidence based decisions that take account of both effectiveness and economics is greater now than ever Using case studies and illustrative examples throughout the authors describe how the activities and outputs of evidence synthesis systematic review economic analysis and decision making interact within and across different spheres of health and social policy and practice Expanding on the first edition the book now covers approaches to evidence synthesis that combine economics and systematic review methods in the applied fields of social welfare education and criminal justice as well as health care Written by economists and health services researchers closely involved in developing evidence based policy and practice it showcases current state of the art methodology and will be an invaluable read for all policy makers and practitioners using evidence to inform decisions analysts conducting research to support decisions and students discovering the need for evidence based decisions to incorporate economic perspectives and evidence

Evidence-based Clinical Practice John P. Geyman, Richard A. Deyo, Scott D. Ramsey, 2000 Lays the groundwork for understanding the evidence based approach and explains how to apply evidence based medicine skills to every day practice Teaches how to critically read medical literature develop new skills of self learning better evaluate clinical guidelines and understand techniques and limitations of cost and outcome assessment Discusses computer aids to clinical practice and assessment of accuracy of screening and diagnostic tests and provides many patient vignettes to illustrate concepts Geyman is professor emeritus of family medicine at the University of Washington School of Medicine Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

Evidence-based Health Policy Vivian Lin, Brendan Gibson, 2003 Health policy is a highly contested arena where there have been increasing calls for policy to be more evidence based A central question remains is evidence based health policy possible This book offers a critical perspective on the interplay between generation and policy formulation The purpose of this book is to critique the notion that evidence based medicine can make an unproblematic transformation into evidence approach to health policy that makes use of the best available research in an explicit rigorous and accountable way The book is illustrated by eleven case studies of health policy making that elucidate how evidence is used in particular policy making contexts These case studies provide unique insights from the people who have been involved in the policy process They reveal the complex nature of evidence based research The premise of the book is that although the idea of evidence based health policy holds considerable promise it will not be realised without substantial evaluation of the problems conceptual and practical that beset it

Managing the Fundamental Drivers of Transport Demand European Conference of Ministers of Transport, Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, 2003 This publication presents the proceedings of an international seminar held in December 2002 organised by the Belgian Presidency of the EMCT in order to prepare for a debate on sustainable transport policies at the 2003 Council of Ministers The seminar sought to review the key determinants of transport demand and to identify measures for influencing these factors It highlighted the importance of implementing demand management policies and identified aspects of good practice in integrated transport land use planning and charging for the use of infrastructure Social Sciences and Innovation Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development,2001 These workshop proceedings examine the contribution of the social sciences to improving our understanding of social and technological innovation processes to overcoming barriers to innovation and how innovation can improve social science Proceedings of the Nutrition Society ,2003 Proceedings of International Conference on Systems Science and Engineering (ICSSE '88) : 25-28 July 1988, Beijing, China Weimin Cheng,1989 Some 170 papers of the July 1988 meeting survey advances in the main areas of systems science and engineering Areas covered include theoretical and methodical developments applications to population telecommunication transportation and water resource systems optimization multicriteria decision making game theory decision analysis management information and decision support systems Printed in China on acidic paper directly from authors typescripts many of which strain legibility Four papers are printed after the author index while not appearing in the table of contents Sloppy production for a 200 book No subject index Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR Towards Evidence-based Policy for Canadian Education John Deutsch Institute for the Study of Economic Policy,Statistics Canada,2002 Evidence is increasingly being demanded before education policy in Canada is developed Unfortunately all too often education research and policy proposals come from relatively isolated perspectives This volume arose from a project that brought together a diverse group of stakeholders as part of an ongoing effort to improve communications between relevant groups The authors focus on aspects of evidenced based decision making for education in the Canadian context providing both survey articles and commentary Topics include new and innovative provincial initiatives such as la carte de la d favorisation au Qu bec and the Alberta Initiative for School Improvement AISI Major Canadian large scale testing initiatives including the Third International Math and Science Survey TIMSS the national Student Achievement Indicators Program SAIP and provincial testing programs are discussed and selected studies resulting from these programs are presented Also included are overviews of currently relevant issues such as male female differences in test scores high school exit exams the causal impact of education on social assistance use and long term labour market outcomes teacher evaluations at universities and the optimal level of investment in education from an economic perspective Contributors are from university education faculties and economics departments provincial government ministries of education and related agencies school boards and other related organizations such as the Canadian Teachers Federation the Council of Ministers of Education Conseil Sup rieur de l ducation au Qu bec and Statistics Canada Reflecting Canada portions of the book are in French and others are in English Transactions of the National Academy of Science and Technology ,1994 Bulletin of Business Research ,1926 Business and Professional People for the Public Interest V. Evidence-based Decision-making Unplugged McMaster University. Centre for Health Economics and Policy Analysis,Stephen Birch,1997 Evidence based approaches to decision making have emerged as ways of improving the performance of health care providers and health care systems Proponents of the evidence based approach emphasize that the application of research findings to decision making is a matter of judgement and not a recipe for cookbook practice despite these exhortations decision making processes are becoming increasingly dominated by matters of research evidence in ways which restrict or prevent consideration being given to applicability of the external evidence Although the rationale of the evidence based approach is to inform decision making in this paper the models of research and analytical approaches used to generate the evidence are shown to be generally not decision informing In section 2 the contrasting frameworks of the researcher and the decision maker are identified showing that while both frameworkers are problem based they are essentially based on different problems In particular the researcher s interest in health care interventions has led to the development and use of designs which strip the research of contextual issues and hence represent a major departure from both the underlying notions of the complex pathways to health and the empirical findings concerning the importance of population context In section 3 the implications of this service focused approach underlying evidence based decision making are considered
