Enhancing Data Systems to Improve the Quality of Cancer Care National Research Council,Commission on Life Sciences,Institute of Medicine,National Cancer Policy Board,2000-10-09 One of the barriers to improving the quality of cancer care in the United States is the inadequacy of data systems Out of date or incomplete information about the performance of doctors hospitals health plans and public agencies makes it hard to gauge the quality of care Augmenting today s data systems could start to fill the gap This report examines the strengths and weaknesses of current systems and makes recommendations for enhancing data systems to improve the quality of cancer care The board s recommendations fall into three key areas Enhance key elements of the data system infrastructure i e quality of care measures cancer registries and databases data collection technologies and analytic capacity Expand support for analyses of quality of cancer care using existing data systems Monitor the effectiveness of data systems to promote quality improvement within health systems

Delivering Affordable Cancer Care in the 21st Century Institute of Medicine,Board on Health Care Services,National Cancer Policy Forum,2013-06-20 Rising health care costs are a central fiscal challenge confronting the United States National spending on health care currently accounts for 18 percent of gross domestic product GDP but is anticipated to increase to 25 percent of GDP by 2037 The Bipartisan Policy Center argues that this rapid growth in health expenditures creates an unsustainable burden on America s economy with far reaching consequences These consequences include crowding out many national priorities including investments in education infrastructure and research stagnation of employee wages and decreased international competitiveness In spite of health care costs that far exceed those of other countries health outcomes in the United States are not considerably better With the goal of ensuring that patients have access to high quality affordable cancer care the Institute of Medicine s IOM s National Cancer Policy Forum convened a public workshop Delivering Affordable Cancer Care in the 21st Century October 8 9 2012 in Washington DC Delivering Affordable Cancer Care in the 21st Century summarizes the workshop Cancer Care in Low-Resource Areas National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Health and Medicine Division,Board on Health Care Services,National Cancer Policy Forum,2017-11-14 Though cancer was once considered to be a problem primarily in wealthy nations low and middle income countries now bear a majority share of the global cancer burden and cancer often surpasses the burden of infectious diseases in these countries Effective low cost cancer control options are available for some malignancies with the World Health Organization estimating that these interventions could facilitate the prevention of approximately one third of cancer deaths worldwide Effective cancer treatment approaches are also available and can reduce the morbidity and mortality due to cancer in low resource areas But these interventions remain inaccessible for many people in the world especially those residing in low resource communities that are characterized by a lack of funds on an individual or a societal basis to cover health infrastructure and care costs As a result worse outcomes for patients with cancer are more common in low and middle income countries compared with high income countries Few guidelines and strategies for cancer control consider the appropriateness and feasibility of interventions in low resource settings and this may undermine the effectiveness of care Recognizing the challenges of providing cancer care in resource constrained settings the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine developed a two workshop series examining cancer care in low resource communities building on prior work of the National Academies The first workshop held in October 2015 focused on cancer prevention and early detection The second workshop was held in November 2016 and focused on cancer treatment palliative care and survivorship care in low resource areas This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions of this workshop The

Assessing the Quality of Cancer Care National Research Council, Institute of Medicine, National Cancer Policy Board, Committee on

Assessing Improvements in Cancer Care in Georgia,2005-05-18 Shortly after 1998 leading members of Georgia's government medical community and public spirited citizenry began considering ways in which some of Georgia's almost 5 billion 25 year settlement from the tobacco industry's Master Settlement Agreement with the 50 states could be used to benefit Georgia residents Given tobacco's role in causing cancer they decided to create an entity and program with the mission of making Georgia a national leader in cancer prevention treatment and research This new entity called the Georgia Cancer Coalition Inc GCC and the state of Georgia subsequently began implementing a far reaching state cancer initiative that includes five strategic goals 1 preventing cancer and detecting existing cancers earlier 2 improving access to quality care for all state residents with cancer 3 saving more lives in the future 4 training future cancer researchers and caregivers and 5 turning the eradication of cancer into economic growth for Georgia Assessing the Quality of Cancer Care identifies a set of measures that could be used to gauge Georgia's progress in improving the quality of its cancer services and in reducing cancer related morbidity and mortality

A Foundation for Evidence-Driven Practice Institute of Medicine,Board on Health Care Services,National Cancer Policy Forum,2010-07-02 The IOM's National Cancer Policy Forum held a workshop October 5 6 2009 to examine how to apply the concept of a rapid learning health system to the problem of cancer This document summarizes the workshop

Interpreting the Volume-Outcome Relationship in the Context of Cancer Care National Research Council,Division on Earth and Life Studies,Institute of Medicine,National Cancer Policy Board,2001-08-11

Interpreting the Volume Outcome Relationship in the Context of Cancer Care is a summary of a workshop held on May 11 2000 which brought together experts to review evidence of the relationship between volume of services and health related outcomes for cancer and other conditions discuss methodological issues related to the interpretation of the association between volume and outcome assess the applicability of volume as an indicator of quality of care and identify research needed to better understand the volume outcome relationship and its application to quality improvement

Cancer Care in Low-Resource Areas National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Institute of Medicine,Board on Health Care Services,National Cancer Policy Forum,2016-12-01 Though cancer was once considered to be a problem primarily in wealthy nations low and middle income countries now bear a majority share of the global cancer burden and cancer often surpasses the burden of infectious diseases in these countries Effective low cost cancer control options are available for some malignancies with the World Health Organization estimating that these interventions could facilitate the prevention of approximately one third of cancer deaths worldwide But these interventions remain inaccessible for many people in the world especially those residing in low resource communities that are characterized by a lack of funds on an individual or societal basis to cover health infrastructure and care costs Few guidelines and strategies for cancer control consider the appropriateness and feasibility of interventions in low resource settings and may undermine the effectiveness of these efforts For example interventions that are designed for high resource settings may not account for important considerations in low resource settings such as resource constraints infrastructure requirements or whether a community has the capacity to deliver downstream cancer care Patients in resource constrained communities continue to face delayed diagnoses of cancer potentially resulting in the diagnosis of later stage cancers and worsened patient outcomes In addition social stigmas geopolitical issues and cultural norms may limit access to cancer care in certain communities Recognizing the challenges of providing cancer care in these settings the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine developed a workshop series examining cancer care in low resource communities This report summarizes the presentations and discussions from the first workshop which focused on cancer prevention and early detection
