The Passenger: Medieval Texts and Transits James L. Smith, 2017-12-08 What strange transactions take place in the mobile spaces between loci How does the flow of forces between fixed points enliven texts suggest new connections and map out the dizzying motion of myriad interactions The essays in this volume were first presented at the 2014 New Chaucer Society Congress in Reykjavik Iceland where a meeting of minds in a shared intermediate space initiated dialogue from diverse perspectives and wended its way through the invisible spaces between concrete categories objects and entities The resulting volume asks a core question what can we learn by tarrying at the nexus points and hubs through which things move in and out of texts attempting to trace not the things themselves or their supposedly stable significations but rather their forms of emergence and retreat of disorder and disequilibrium The answer is complex and intermediate for we ourselves are emerging and retreating within our own systems of transit and experiencing our own disequilibrium Scholarship like transit is never complete and yet never congeals into inertia Through the manifold explorations of the dynamic transit transports scapes and flows found within literary and Chaucerian thought worlds new vistas of motion and motivation emerge Following John Urry's mobile sociology the volume advances the notion that we can no longer view either social worlds or textual worlds as uniform surfaces upon which one can trace or write a history of the horizontal movements of humans and human mentalities rather everything is in constant motion objects images information ideas and mobility is thus also vertical involving human and non human actants The essays in this volume consider then how medieval literary texts in Chaucer's period rewrap time and space by the means of sophisticated transit and transport structures which might be traced within specific works but also across works such as in text networks Motive entities within literature twist and turn interact and collide and destabilise predictable trajectories with unpredictable vigor
