Routledge Handbook of the Economics of Knowledge Cristiano Antonelli, Albert Link, 2014-12-05 The Routledge Handbook of the Economics of Knowledge provides a comprehensive framework to integrate the advancements over the last 20 years in the analysis of technological knowledge as an economic good and in the static and dynamic characteristics of its generation process There is a growing consensus in the field of economics that knowledge technological knowledge in particular is one of the most relevant resources of wealth yet it is one of the most difficult and complex activities to understand or even to conceptualize The economics of knowledge is an emerging field that explores the generation exploitation and dissemination of technological knowledge Technological knowledge cannot any longer be regarded as a homogenous good that stems from standardized generation processes Quite the opposite technological knowledge appears more and more to be a basket of heterogeneous items resources and even experiences All of these sources which are both internal and external to the firm are complementary as is the interplay between a bottom up and top down generation processes In this context the interactions between the public research system private research laboratories and various networks of learning processes within and among firms play a major role in the creation of technological knowledge In this Handbook special attention is given to the relationship among technological knowledge and both upstream scientific knowledge and related downstream resources By addressing the antecedents and consequences of technological knowledge from both an upstream and downstream perspective this Handbook will become an indispensable tool for scholars and practitioners aiming to master the generation and the use of technological knowledge

Knowledge, Clusters and Regional Innovation Innovation Systems Research Network. Conference, Queen's University (Kingston, Ont.). School of Policy Studies, 2002 Innovation is increasingly recognised as the key to successful competition in the global knowledge based economy In Knowledge Clusters and Regional Innovation the authors illuminate the highly differentiated nature of the innovation systems found across the country and demonstrate that innovation can occur in a wide range of sectors and clusters ranging from multimedia and biotechnology in large metropolitan areas to more traditional sectors such as wood products in rural settings Written by members of the Innovation Systems Research Network ISRN a cross national network of regionally oriented researchers from a wide range of disciplines Knowledge Clusters and Regional Innovation provides important insights into the varied nature of innovation in the Canadian economy The members of the network have recently launched a major study of cluster development across Canada that promises to provide scholars and policymakers with continuing insights into the nature economic development in Canada Contributors include Neil Bradford Huron University College Shauna Brail Ministry of Economic Development and Trade Ontario John N H Britton University of Toronto Michael Gurstein Technical University of British Columbia J Adam Holbrook Cooper H Langford University of Calgary Lisa Mills Brown University Jorge Niosi Universit du Qu bec Montr al Pierre Therrien Marketplace Innovation Directorate Industry Canada Diane Gabrielle Tremblay Universit du Qu bec and David A Wolfe
