

Chapter 10: Models for Processing and the Understanding Process

Education 1980

2. Knowledge Base

1. What are the 10 key psychological processes?

1. Processing the information.
2. Processing occurs in all areas and in all conditions.
3. Information flows in a continuous flow, not independent blocks.
4. Spontaneous, primary-unintentional processing are different.
5. This world is filled with information. All patterns have meanings.
6. An individual brings into himself the significance of the signs through his/her own effort.
7. Subjects and responses operate spontaneously, but intention and conscious efforts make it intelligible.
8. In our conditions, the spontaneous processes make sense, these conditions and responses are interacting with each other, resulting in intentional acts.
9. This age world gives a continuous condition, we can know that an information can mean more than one possible response, however, not explanations.
10. To move from general to specific, change in specific cases to specific and individual meanings, as relationships for explanations go from the whole picture to detail.
11. Two things that help processing during growth are education and relationships.
12. Two sources are being processed are: external parallel sources, a subject engaged in his activities, or an external source available.

Framework For Understanding Poverty Study Guide:

Quicklet on Ruby K. Payne's A Framework for Understanding Poverty (CliffNotes-like Summary) Jeff

Davis, 2012-02-24 ABOUT THE BOOK A Framework for Understanding Poverty provides important insight into the nation's ongoing difficulty educating poor children. Students from impoverished backgrounds at all levels of America's education system achieve success at lower rates than students who are not impoverished. The author Ruby Payne suggests that individuals who have experienced generational poverty—that is, individuals whose parents also grew up in poverty—behave in certain characteristic ways that put them at a disadvantage in institutional settings like public school. Payne defines generational poverty as different from situational poverty, which is the condition of poverty caused by lack of resources due to a particular event like death, chronic illness, or divorce. The idea is that raising oneself out of situational poverty is easier than raising oneself out of generational poverty. MEET THE AUTHOR Jeff Davis is a life-long educator with a Ph.D. in English Studies who has taught at both the high school and university levels. He is also an artist and an amateur anthropologist who is a proponent of First Art, that art which our ancient ancestors practiced some 30,000 years ago and even earlier. His most recent book, The First Generation Student Experience, expanded the college student affairs field describing the challenges of contemporary nontraditional students. Related to his interest in evolutionary biology, he is currently working on a writing pedagogy book that argues that motivation is the most important dimension of the creative process, even more important than skill and native ability. EXCERPT FROM THE BOOK Payne establishes her working definition of poverty as the extent to which an individual does without resources such as financial, emotional, mental, spiritual, physical support systems, relationships, role models, and knowledge of hidden rules. 8 The challenge for the school or work setting is to analyze and understand the available resources before problem solving and to utilize opportunities that impact the non-financial resources. She describes three aspects of language registers of language discourse patterns and story structure. 27 Registers of language include frozen, formal, consultative, casual, and intimate. Dropping down one register in the same conversation is socially acceptable; dropping down two registers is socially offensive. Buy a copy to keep reading ASWB LBSW
