Pachauri, Laurence Tubiana, 2014-02-20 Innovation has become the new buzzword across the globe International organisations governments corporates academia and society see it as the answer to the major economic social and environmental transformations challenging the models of the 20th century Innovations are occurring worldwide and alternative solutions to the existing problems are emerging in all sectors electric cars organic farming renewable energy and e learning are good examples These alternatives can be ascribed with qualities such as decentralized frugal flexible smart and democratic virtues that are lacking in conventional models They are attributed with the potential to meet the overall global challenges such as climate change and the growing inequalities between and within countries What is the real potential of innovation Does the rapid deployment of innovations lead towards a more sustainable and inclusive society Can innovations and the emerging alternatives replace conventional models Beyond technologies what institutional innovations are required to support sustainable development A Planet for Life 2014 aims to answer these questions and explore innovation in all its aspects through a series of texts written by international experts The objective of this book is to analyse experiences from across the world and the role of innovation in a variety of areas of development such as urbanization agriculture and food the mobility of people and freight education and the provision of water and energy to all

Musical Vulnerability Elizabeth H. MacGregor, 2024-12-24 Since the early twenty first century music education across the world has been shaped by neoliberal discourse extolling the benefits of music upon academic achievement health and wellbeing and social development However such benefits are far from universal on the contrary music making often reveals our shortcomings and dependencies This highlights an urgent need for music education to be reframed by an understanding of musical vulnerability our inherent and situational openness to being affected by the semantic and somatic properties of music making Drawing on existing vulnerability studies this book evaluates how musicmaking can foster both positive receptivity and negative susceptibility depending on its delineation of self identity social identity and space and its embodiment through aural receptivity mimetic participation and affective transmission Through phenomenological ethnographic research with teachers and pupils it exposes how values espoused in the music classroom require the personal and interpersonal negotiation of conflicting musical expectations identities and abilities It makes recommendations for music education policymakers teachers and researchers in diverse global contexts suggesting the importance of developing pedagogies of vulnerability in order to foster caring classroom music making praxes that acknowledge music s capacity both to heal and to harm
