Resumen

La exploración neurológica (EN) es la herramienta clínica más importante con que se cuenta en medicina para la detección y diagnóstico de las enfermedades del sistema nervioso. Como en muchas áreas de la medicina la integración de los datos clínicos obtenidos mediante la EN con los conocimientos neuroanatómicos y neurofisiológicos resulta de vital importancia para la correcta interpretación de la EN. Para el estudiante de medicina, con frecuencia la EN, y en general las materias relacionadas con los neurociencias, son consideradas como muy extensas, difíciles y áridas, por lo que es una importante necesidad de manera sencilla las enseñanzas de las distintas disciplinas neurocientíficas al estudiante de medicina y al médico en general. En este sentido, el objetivo del presente artículo es proponer un esquema para la realización de una exploración neurológica básica (ENB) que le permita al médico de primer contacto identificar eficientemente posibles alteraciones neurológicas (solo se tocan las más frecuentes o graves), para así poder brindar un tratamiento inicial adecuado o establecer criterios de referencia oportuna a otro nivel de atención.

Basic neurological examination for the general practitioner Abstract

The neurological examination (NE) is the most important clinical tool in medicine for the detection and diagnosis of nervous system diseases. In several medical areas, the integration of clinical data with neuroanatomical and neurophysiological knowledge is of vital importance for the correct utilization and interpretation of NE. Frequently for the medical students, the NE and other subjects related to neurosciences are conceptualized as lengthy, difficult and boring, so it is important to teach these subjects to the medical students and general practitioners in a simple and comprehensive manner. Hence, the main objective of this paper is to propose a scheme for performing a basic neurological examination
