

The book cover features a vibrant, multi-layered illustration. The top section has a dark teal background with a repeating pattern of stylized birds and flowers in a lighter teal and gold. Below this is a horizontal band with a yellow center and red sides. The bottom section shows two male faces in profile, looking upwards, with their mouths open as if breathing out or singing. From their mouths, a variety of colorful butterflies and flowers (including white, yellow, purple, and red) emerge, floating against a background of a repeating teal and gold circular pattern.

Circuits of the Sacred Carlos Ulises Decena, 2023-01-04 In Circuits of the Sacred Carlos Ulises Decena examines transnational black Latinx Caribbean immigrant queer life and spirit Decena models what he calls a faggotology the erotic in the divine as found in the disreputable and the excessive as foundational to queer black critical and expressive praxis of the future Drawing on theoretical analysis memoir creative writing and ethnography of Santería a Lucumín in Santo Domingo Havana and New Jersey Decena moves between languages locations pronouns and genres to map the itineraries of blackness as a circuit a multipronged and multisensorial field A feminist pilgrimage and extended conversation with the dead Decena's study is a provocative work that transforms the academic monograph into a gathering of stories theoretical innovation and expressive praxis to channel voices ancestors deities theorists artists and spirits from the vantage point of radical feminism and queer of color thinking

National Bodies/embodied Nations Julie Avril Minich, 2008 This dissertation examines the intersection of disability with race and gender in texts that seek to reconfigure or critique nationalism Previous disability scholarship on the nation has viewed the nation as a concept predicated on the able body coinciding with feminist and anti racist critiques positing nationalism as a construct grounded in relations of domination In contrast this project asks what happens when cultural workers aligning themselves with liberatory social movements such as feminism the Chicana o Movement or struggles against globalization and in favor of democratization reexamine nationalism and citizenship through representations of disability It argues that although the reformulated nationalisms and transnational subjectivities presented in these texts do not always evade the problems associated with the idea of the nation notably its exclusionary constructions of citizenship there are nonetheless important ethical epistemological and political implications in the acts of claiming disability and of producing cultural texts that seek to construct communities based on that claim

On Making Sense Ernesto Javier Martínez, 2012-10-31 On

Making Sense juxtaposes texts produced by black Latino and Asian queer writers and artists to understand how knowledge is acquired and produced in contexts of racial and gender oppression From James Baldwin s 1960s novel Another Country to Margaret Cho s turn of the century stand up comedy these works all exhibit a preoccupation with intelligibility or the labor of making sense of oneself and of making sense to others In their efforts to make sense these writers and artists argue against merely being accepted by society on society s terms but articulate a desire to confront epistemic injustice an injustice that affects people in their capacity as knowers and as communities worthy of being known The book speaks directly to critical developments in feminist and queer studies including the growing ambivalence to antirealist theories of identity and knowledge In so doing it draws on decolonial and realist theory to offer a new framework to understand queer writers and artists of color as dynamic social theorists
