exploitative behavior including corruption and The IPP model does not facilitate a further development of the host country's power sector The author argues that these consequences for development can be improved without detrimentally compromising the private sector's willingness to continue to invest While pursuing this analysis the author also explores such issues as the following the web of parties and contracts constituting the IPP model including the model's risk allocation an analysis of political risk including to what extent foreign investors also are protected against commercial and credit risks the competing needs of predictability and flexibility in long term contracts how investment arbitration tribunals have reacted both to the change in macroeconomic circumstances caused by the East Asian Crisis of 1997-98 and to numerous and credible allegations of corruption during procurement identification of factors reducing or increasing the IPP model's tendency to fail during severe economic recessions
