Zambian Catholic boys mission boarding school in the 1990s using the context sensitive methods of social anthropology Drawing upon Michel Foucault's notion of the panoptic gaze Anthony Simpson demonstrates how students are both drawn to mission education as a civilising process yet also resist many of the lessons that the official institution offers particularly with respect to claims of true Christian identity and educated masculinity The phrase Half London reflects the boys own perception of their privileged but very partial grasp in the Zambian context of acute socio economic decline of civilised status The book offers unparalleled detail and insight into the contribution of mission schooling to the processes of postcolonial identity formation in Africa Its rich and compelling ethnography opens up a strong sense of everyday life within the school and raises compelling questions about identity in plural societies beyond the confines of St Antony's Anthony Simpson taught at the Zambian Catholic mission boys boarding school from 1974 to 1997 He arrived in Zambia as an English teacher but his involvement in the day to day life of St Antony's led him to an interest in anthropology and psychology Key features A lively account of African mission schooling examining the process of postcolonial education A practical demonstration of Michel Foucault's discussion of subjectivity and the invention of self A detailed demonstration of religious plurality in an African setting

Qualitative Research Keith Carter, Sara Delamont, 1996 A book which examines the need for social scientists to include into their research the feelings and emotions of both themselves and their respondents Qualitative researchers have in part insulated their readers from raw emotion or failed to document the whole of the facts surrounding collection of sensitive data By taking a professional stance the observer can sometimes miss the reality of what they are observing People's problems including the researchers own subjective biases and feelings need to be included in all qualitative research The book argues that the professional stance frequently adopted by observers and observed unconsciously insulates the observer and hence the reader from the true picture This book examines the worries fears feelings and restrictions placed on researchers when observing recording and interviewing people about their private and sensitive inner feelings and the problems which arise when respondents being studied are in the grip of powerful emotions
