European Union Peacebuilding And Policing Author Michael Merlingen Oct 2006:

Local Legitimacy in Peacebuilding Birte Julia Gippert, 2017-08-15 This book analyses the role of legitimacy in explaining local actors compliance with international peacebuilding operations The book provides a comparative micro level study of local actors reasons for compliance with or resistance to international peacebuilding Specifically it analyses three pathways to compliance legitimacy coercion and reward seeking to explore local police officers compliance with the reforms stipulated by the EU Police Mission in Bosnia and the EU Rule of Law Mission in Kosovo The work constructs a holistic framework of the mechanisms connecting each pathway to compliance and measures legitimacy using micro level indicators This study not only shines light on the question why local actors comply a crucial factor in mission effectiveness but it also illuminates exactly how compliance works The book contributes nuanced evidence about the often heralded importance of legitimacy in peacebuilding showing exactly in which situations local legitimacy matters and in which it does not It is also highly relevant for policy makers as it unpacks and explains the mechanisms behind local legitimacy assisting in understanding this usually nebulous concept This book demonstrates the need for micro level analysis by revealing the relevant processes of legitimation usually hidden behind commonly perceived social fault lines such as the Serb Albanian divide in Kosovo This book will be of much interest to students of peacebuilding war and conflict studies Balkans politics security studies and International Relations

European Union Peacebuilding and Policing, 2006 Policing the European Union Malcolm Anderson, 2023 Limits to the European Union's Normative Power in a Post-conflict Society Rok Zupančič, Nina Pejič, 2018-04-17 By shedding light on EULEX the EU mission to Kosovo this open access book investigates the EU's peacebuilding activities in that country in the light of the normative power theory in the post conflict setting and peacebuilding theory Ten years after the massive engagement of the EU in the country torn by war the authors critically assess the effects of the EU projecting its normative power the enforcement of its standards good or bad through the EULEX mission taking into consideration also the local aspects so far neglected in this field of research Inspecting thoroughly the EULEX activities in the police customs and judiciary sector the authors reveal that the mission can contribute to a positive change but only in those cases which do not request a heavy political involvement and broad leverage by other international players for example in improving standards of work in police and customs When it comes to the most serious cases of organized crime corruption and war crimes EULEX however has not been able to address them effectively due to several internal mission's deficiencies and external factors the perceived ineffectiveness of EULEX among the local population led to the lowering of trust not only in this CSDP mission but also in the EU in general This open access book offers a comprehensive assessment of the EULEX mission based on two Horizon2020 research projects IECEU Improving the Effectiveness of Capabilities in EU Conflict Prevention and KOSNORTH The European Union and its Normative Power in a Post conflict Society A Case Study of Northern Kosovo Marie Skłodowska Curie Individual Fellowship As such it is an invaluable resource for scholars students and policymakers interested in security questions in South Eastern Europe and EU external action

'European Policing'? A Critical Approach to European Union Civilian Crisis Management with Special Reference to Macedonia Isabelle Ioannides, 2014 The European Union similar to other international actors engaged in peacebuilding efforts has incorporated programmes on police restructuring and the deployment of police missions within its common foreign and security policy These developments largely resulted from the EU's experience in the Yugoslav crises It is in this region that the Union first tested its civilian crisis management capabilities and launched its first police operations Is there a European way of doing policing This paper examines the concept of European policing theoretically from a critical theory perspective and empirically through the case of Macedonia In doing so it examines what and whose security is tackled in EU police programmes and operations and how this is done in practice The paper draws examples from EU efforts in police reform in Macedonia It argues that the EU lacks a global vision on crisis management and therefore on police reform This absence of overall direction at a strategic level obstructs EU coherence and effectiveness at an operational level when implementing police reform in post conflict societies

The European Union and Peacebuilding Steven Blockmans, Jan Wouters, Tom Ruys, 2010 With a Foreword by Catherine Ashton High Representative of the Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy Vice President of the European Commission Like conflict prevention and crisis management peacebuilding forms an integral part of the European Union's external policy efforts to break the cycle of conflict insecurity and poverty A concept developed in the context of the United Nations the EU's Lisbon Treaty mentions post conflict stabilisation among the tasks which the EU is set to perform in the implementation of the Common Security and Defence Policy The Union's advance in this field has been universally welcomed by peacebuilding actors especially since the EU's ongoing contributions in financial technical and logistical terms in post conflict areas have been coupled in an increasing number of European Security and Defence Policy missions The proliferation of the EU's institutional and operational mechanisms to build peace in post conflict environments has led to a whole series of new policy and legal questions which are addressed by leading practitioners and academics in this unique compilation Specific to this book Contributions take into account the final text of the Lisbon Treaty and the lessons learned from more than twenty military and civilian operations Addresses policy and legal potential and limits and outlines the parameters for future decision making and capacity building Combines thematic contributions with concrete case studies and offers insights into how the EU's peacebuilding tools are implemented in practice

Police Cooperation in the European Union Under the Treaty of Lisbon Hartmut Aden, 2015 Police cooperation in the EU has been characterised by intergovernmental patterns of decision making With the Treaty of Lisbon 2009 it has been fully integrated in the EU as part of the Area of Freedom Security and Justice AFSJ What has changed since then which problems persist What is the practical impact of the new rules established by the Treaty of Lisbon How does the European Parliament use its extended co decision powers in this field What is the new role of human rights and data protection Contributions by scholars from different disciplines and by practitioners analyse continuity and change of police cooperation in the EU in a political legal and practical perspective Contributions by Jan Philipp Albrecht MEP Karsten Behn Ludo Block Monica den Boer Gertjan Boulet Olivier Cahn Cyrille Fijnaut Laura Fuger Mario Gruschinske Daniela Heid Paul De Hert Nathalie Hirschmann Hans Gerd Jaschke Daniela Kietz Wilhelm Knelangen Michael Niemeier Bettina Rauch Schulz Peter Schaar Funda Tekin and Hartmut Aden European Union Peacebuilding Approach: Governance and Practices of the Instrument for Stability Michal Naturski, 2022 The Politics of EU Police Cooperation John D. Occhipinti, 2023 Will the European Union soon have a policing agency similar to the U S Federal Bureau of Investigation John Occhipinti traces the evolution of the European Police Office Europol bringing to life the core themes e g the tension between supranationalism and intergovernmentalism concerns over the democratic deficit in the EU and the impact of enlargement in the study of European integration Occhipinti draws from competing theories of European integration to explain the development of supranationalism in European police cooperation Considering forces stemming from both within and outside of the EU and reflecting concerns over international terrorism and transnational organized crime he explores the roles played by key actors and events at every stage of Europol s development from the initial creation of the Trevi Group in 1975 to mid 2002 His work is a major contribution not only to the literature on Third Pillar issues but also to an understanding of the deepening of European integration overall A Peaceful Revolution Cyrille Fijnaut, 2019 This book outlines in an accessible manner the wide ranging and revolutionary development of one of the most crucial and dynamic EU policy areas since the Maastricht Treaty that of police and judicial cooperation between its Member States It examines the subject in light of burning issues surrounding migration terrorism and of course Brexit Security versus Justice? Ms Florian Geyer, Professor Elspeth Guild, 2013-03-28 One of the most dynamic areas of EU law since the great changes brought to the EU constitutional order by the Amsterdam Treaty in 1999 has been cooperation in the fields of policing and criminal justice Both fields have already been the subject of substantial legislative effort in the EU and an increasing amount of judicial activity in the European Court of Justice In 2007 after the Constitutional Treaty of 2004 failed the new Reform Treaty planned very substantive changes to these policies Bringing together a wide ranging set of topics and contributors this book enables readers to understand these changes by examining three key questions how did we get to the Reform Treaty what have been and still are the key struggles in competence and how do the changes fit into the transformation of police and judicial cooperation in criminal matters in the EU Policing the European Union, 1995

The Constitutional Architecture of EU Peacebuilding for Law Enforcement Institutions Martina Spornbauer, European University Institute. Law Department, 2012 This research first sets out to verify whether the measures in the EU s peacebuilding toolbox indeed turn out to have converging objectives an overlapping scope and provide for similar activities across the CFSP non CFSP divide Does the European Union live up to expectations as to the extensiveness of the range of its tools And if in the affirmative do they have the potential to leave a substantial and sustainable impact These tools include primarily the non CFSP external assistance instruments on the one hand and EU operations under the aegis of the CFSP on the other Both are presented in detail in order precisely to classify their objectives on all levels from the Treaty level to the instruments implementing decisions and programmes and to identify the possible activities undertaken to this end Underpinned by the objective of shedding light on the competence allocation in EU peacebuilding this analysis yields questions such as what actually is the difference between an EU contracted police officer mentoring and monitoring third country police officers in conducting an effective crime investigation according to predetermined action fiches and an expert funded under an EU technical assistance or twinning project to establish a detailed workplan and strategy for enhancing the effectiveness of crime investigation And what is the difference between awareness raising training and trial monitoring with the objective of advancing in the fight against corruption as opposed to capacity building and financial assistance in the public sector in this respect And does the establishment of a transparent and objective case allocation system in the judiciary call for a non CFSP financed project or can it also be achieved through mentoring in the context of an EU strengthening operation

The Future of Police and Judicial Cooperation in the European Union Cyrille J. C. F. Fijnaut, Jannemieke W. Ouwerkerk, 2010 Since the early 1990s cross border police and judicial cooperation has become a very important domain of the European Union The Lisbon Treaty if accepted by all the Member States will certainly be a major stimulus to its further development in the field of internal security as well as in the field of external policy In any event the recent proposal for a new third comprehensive policy programme with regard to the Area of Freedom Security and Justice the so called Stockholm Programme foreshadows some of the changes the Brussels institutions and the Member States would like to embrace in the coming years This book contains the contributions of scholars and practitioners to a conference on the future of police and judicial cooperation in the European Union that took place in November 2008 at Tilburg University Referring to what has been achieved in this domain since the Treaty of Maastricht these papers not only assess the proposals that have been put forward in successive policy documents relating to the Stockholm Programme but they also pinpoint to the ongoing problems in the theory and practice of police and judicial cooperation within the European Union and to the ways in which these questions could best be solved

Police and Justice Co-Operation and the New European Borders Malcolm Anderson, 2002-08-28 When we consider the ideal of the family of nations implied by the European Union it seems unnatural to deal with the question of where Europe's borders lie Yet the question is urgently raised by grave issues of internal and external security As the European Union's imminent eastward and southern expansion becomes reality side by side with the evolving new emphasis on security spawned by the events of September 11 2001 we must be sure that the Schengen norms remain viable It is also crucial to take full account of the impact of the enlarged European Union on the non candidate countries of Eastern Europe This important book takes the position that trust is the essential ingredient Fourteen distinguished authors reveal various ways of achieving a level of trust among the members of the enlarged European Union adequate to the need for full freedom security and justice The contexts in which trust must be established include police and judicial cooperation the fight against terrorism organized crime and human trafficking the latent threats to freedom of movement posed by national responses to increased immigration and the transparent extension of EU Justice and Home Affairs measures to the candidate countries The authors include political actors policymakers advisers experts and researchers from all parts of Europe Their individual and collective contributions in each case built solidly on thorough analysis of the relevant issues bring a wide range of profound and wide reaching insights to a vital subject The book is of great significance not only for those charged with law enforcement and security but also to all academics and policymakers concerned with the future of Europe Police and Justice Systems in the European Union Association of European Police Colleges,2000
