Belgian refugees from all parts of the United Kingdom and it is through the kindness of these correspondents that I have been able to compile it. It is thought also that British cooking may benefit by the study of Belgian dishes. The perfect cook like Mrs Arris or the fourth dimension is often heard of but never actually found so this small manual is offered for the use of the work a day and inexperienced mistress and maid. It is not written in the interests of millionaires. The recipes are simple and most inexpensive rather for persons of moderate means than for those who can follow the famous directions for a certain savory. Take a leg of mutton etc. A shelf of provisions should be valued like love making not only for itself but for what it may become. SAVORIES If you serve these let them be like an ankle small and neat and alluring. This dish is not obligatory recollect that it is but a culinary work of supererogation. SOUP Let your soup be extremely hot do not let it be like the Laodiceans. You know what St John said about them and you would be sorry to think of your soup sharing the fate which he describes with such saintly verve. Be sure that your soup has a good foundation and avoid the Italian method of making consommé which is to put a pot of water on to warm and to drive a cow past the door. FISH It is a truism to say that fish should be absolutely fresh yet only too many cooks think during the week end that fish is like the manna of the Hebrews which was imbued with Sabbatarian principles that kept it fresh from Saturday to Monday. I implore of you to think differently about fish. It is a most nourishing and strengthening food other qualities it has too if one must believe the anecdote of the Sultan Saladin and the two anchorites. MEAT If your meat must be cooked in water let it not boil but merely simmer let the pot just whisper agreeably of a good dish to come. Do you know what an English tourist said looking into a Moorish cooking pot. What have you got there. Mutton and rice. For the moment Sidi it is mutton and rice said the Moorish cook but in two hours inshallah when the garlic has kissed the pot it will be the most delicious comforter from Mecca to Casa Blanca. Simmer and season then your meats and let the onion if not garlic just kiss the pot even if you allow no further intimacy between them. Use bay leaves spices herbs of all sorts vinegar cloves and never forget pepper and salt. Game is like Love the best appreciated when it begins to go. Only experience will teach you on blowing up the breast feathers of a pheasant whether it ought to be cooked to day or to morrow. Men as a rule are very particular about the dressing of game though they may not all be able to tell like the Frenchman upon which of her legs a partridge was in the habit of sitting. Game should be underdone rather than well done it should never be without well buttered toast underneath it to collect the gravy and the knife to carve it with should be very very sharp. VEGETABLES Nearly all these are at their best like brunettes just before they are fully matured. SWEETS It is difficult to give any general directions for sweets. They should be made to look attractive and they should be constantly varied. MADE DISHES are a great feature in this little book. The Belgian Cookbook B. Luck, 2015-07-12 Packed with over 300 Belgian recipes for stews soups meat and veal dishes puddings and more this cookbook is sure to the delight the chef and home cook alike. Mrs Luck's recipes have stood the test of time with 2015 being the one hundred year anniversary of the date of first publishing. This edition includes a handy alphabetical index of recipes. Comfort Food from Belgium DIRK. DE
