

The background of the cover is a complex, abstract design. It features several concentric circles, some of which are filled with a vibrant, multi-colored pattern resembling a microscopic view of a material or a complex network. Overlaid on these circles is a dense, web-like structure of thin, intersecting lines in various colors, including yellow, green, and blue. The overall effect is one of dynamic, interconnectedness.

Everyday Information Practices A Social Phenomenological Perspective:

Everyday Information Practices Reijo Savolainen, 2008-06-13 Everyday Information Practices draws on interviews with environmental activists and unemployed people during 2005 and 2006 exploring the practices of information seeking by focusing on the ways in which the participants monitored everyday events and sought information to solve specific problems. Everyday Information Practices Reijo Savolainen, 2008-06-13 In general information practices are viewed as tools that people use to further their everyday projects. Essentially people's information practices draw on their stocks of knowledge that form the habitual starting point of information seeking use and sharing. To judge the value of information available in external sources like newspapers and the Internet people construct information source horizons. They set information sources in order of preference and suggest information seeking paths such as first check the net then visit the library. Everyday Information Practices draws on interviews with environmental activists and unemployed people during 2005 and 2006 exploring the practices of information seeking by focusing on the ways in which the participants monitored everyday events and sought information to solve specific problems. The book shows that everyday information seeking practices tend to be oriented by the principle of good enough. Overall the role of routines and habits is more significant than has earlier been assumed. Thus everyday information seeking practices tend to change quite slowly.
