The torque converter transmits the engine torque hydraulically to the transmission input shaft.

The water pumps the torque to the input shaft approximately 90° to compensate for the difference in speed between the impeller and the turbine.

The water is made of synthetic resin to reduce weight.

To increase the efficiency of the automatic transmission, the torque converter has a lock-up clutch. When the torque converter lock-up clutch is closed, the torque is transmitted directly from the input shaft through the torque converter housing to the transmission input shaft.
