Citizenship, the Self and the Other Malik Ajani, 2015-02-05 In today's world people speak more than 6000 languages and identify with thousands of cultural groups and a large variety of different religions Despite such a number of differences these and other features of human diversity are housed politically inside roughly 200 nation states Globally speaking a diverse citizenry is an unavoidable fact for most countries across the planet Additionally developments such as transnational migrations rising socio economic inequalities the War's on Terror and political movements based on absolutist ideologies continue to raise broader questions of justice governance equality quality of life and social cohesion As such recent decades have witnessed a revival of debates concerning what it means to be a citizen In response to such trends nations such as Australia Canada and Britain have committed themselves to teaching citizenship through their national curriculums Moreover all European Union member states have integrated some form of citizenship education into their primary and secondary curriculums Acknowledging such developments this book uses discussions with citizenship educators as a backdrop for a critical analysis of various conceptions of citizenship such as liberal social democratic civic republican cosmopolitan and multicultural citizenship It also analyses how these educators approach the contemporary reality of nation states which are richly composed of a diverse citizenry Given Britain's transformation into a multi ethnic and multi faith society this book develops as a case study an understanding of how religious and cultural difference can be approached What makes this work unique is that it gleans ideas and research from a wide field of international scholarship such as political science philosophy education and cultural studies A further unique aspect of the book is that it uses the q methodology a research method used to study people's viewpoints to reveal some shared perspectives on citizenship In doing so the path traced here leads to the discovery of spaces where citizenship educators despite their ethnic religious diversity display common ground on values beliefs and aims related to citizenship This book will prove to be a useful resource for academics educators and political leaders as well as interfaith and civil society professionals at large It is worth mentioning that even though this book has benefited from the generously contributed ideas of citizenship educators in England its scholarly research lessons arguments analysis and suggestions which focus on multi faith and multi ethnic societies will also be useful elsewhere Talking Politics ,2004
