Evolutionary Perspectives On Environmental Problems:

Evolutionary Perspectives on Environmental Problems Dustin J. Penn, Iver Myrsterud, The twenty first century presents an increasing number of environmental problems including toxic pollution global warming destruction of tropical forests extinction of biological diversity and depletion of natural resources These environmental problems are generally due to human behavior namely over consumption of resources and overpopulation Designing effective policies to address these problems requires a deep understanding of human behavior as well as ecology This in turn requires considerations of human nature and the evolutionary design of the human mind Evolutionary research on human behavior has profound implications for the environmental sciences The aim of this collection is to bring together a variety of chapters that show how and why Part 1 Human Nature and Resource Conservation addresses environmental problems from different evolutionary perspectives Part 2 The Ecological Noble Savage Hypothesis examines the notion that our environmental problems are due to Western culture and that our ancestors and people in indigenous societies lived in harmony with nature until the corrupting influences of Western culture Part 3 The Tragedy of the Commons explores the conservation of common pool or open access natural resources such as fisheries forests grazing lands freshwater and clean air Part 4 The Evolution of Discounting and Conspicuous Consumption looks at the problem of explaining why people are so ecologically short sighted and why people in developed countries consume so many resources Part 5 Overpopulation and Fertility Declines addresses the evolution of human reproductive decisions Part 6 Biophilia aims to explain why people cherish nature as well as destroy it The goal of this volume is to introduce environmental thinkers to evolutionary perspectives on human behavior and the new interdisciplinary sciences of evolutionary psychology and behavioral ecology This reader aims to help bridge the artificial division between the biological and social sciences and provide a synthesis between evolutionary sciences of human behavior and environmental sciences Dustin J Penn is director Konrad Lorenz Institute Austrian Academy of Sciences Vienna Iver Myrsterud is biologist and researcher at the Department of Biology University of Oslo Norway

Evolutionary Perspectives on Environmental Problems Dustin J. Penn, 2005 Evolutionary Perspectives on Environmental Problems Iver Myrsterud, 2017-07-05

The twenty first century presents an increasing number of environmental problems including toxic pollution global warming destruction of tropical forests extinction of biological diversity and depletion of natural resources These environmental problems are generally due to human behavior namely over consumption of resources and overpopulation Designing effective policies to address these problems requires a deep understanding of human behavior as well as ecology This in turn requires considerations of human nature and the evolutionary design of the human mind Evolutionary research on human behavior has profound implications for the environmental sciences The aim of this collection is to bring together a variety of chapters that show how and why Part 1 Human Nature and Resource Conservation addresses environmental problems from different evolutionary perspectives Part 2 The Ecological Noble Savage Hypothesis examines the notion that our environmental problems are due to Western culture and that our ancestors and people in indigenous societies lived in harmony with nature until the corrupting influences of Western culture

Part 3 The Tragedy of the Commons explores the conservation of common pool or open access natural resources such as fisheries forests grazing lands freshwater and clean air

Part 4 The Evolution of Discounting and Conspicuous Consumption looks at the problem of explaining why people are so ecologically short sighted and why people in developed countries consume so many resources

Part 5 Overpopulation and Fertility Declines addresses the evolution of human reproductive decisions

Part 6 Biophilia aims to explain why people cherish nature as well as destroy it

The goal of this volume is to introduce environmental thinkers to evolutionary perspectives on human behavior and the new interdisciplinary sciences of evolutionary psychology and behavioral ecology This reader aims to help bridge

Ecological Security Dennis Pirages, Theresa Manley DeGeest, 2004 Global environmental politics has emerged from its initial incarnation in the arena of low politics and is rapidly becoming a high politics concern Concern over water pollution air pollution deforestation and related basic environmental issues is giving way to a broader ecological security agenda In this pathbreaking book Dennis Clark Pirages and Theresa Manley DeGeest argue for dramatically broadening the context in which security priorities are established in an age of increasing globalization Addressing the very fundamental question of the sources of premature human deaths and associated insecurity both historically and in the contemporary world the authors observe that in the twentieth century starvation killed nearly as many people as did military conflict But disease was responsible for killing nearly fourteen times as many people as was warfare And in the contemporary world of the twenty first century environmental terrorism and biological warfare are blurring the traditional distinctions between natural disasters accidental deaths and military casualties Ecological Security moves the analysis of global environmental and resource issues to the next level by developing an eco evolutionary perspective for analyzing emerging problems associated with rapid globalization Preserving future ecological security will depend upon maintaining dynamic equilibriums among human populations and between them and pathogenic microorganisms other species and the sustaining capabilities of nature This eco evolutionary framework is used to anticipate and analyze emerging demographic ecological and technological discontinuities and dilemmas associated with rapid globalization The authors conclude by stressing the need for new kinds of global public goods to mitigate the harshest impacts of these rapid and interrelated changes

Environmentalism: An Evolutionary Approach Douglas Spieles, 2017-12-04 The premise of this book is that our environmental dilemmas are products of biological and sociocultural evolution and that through an understanding of evolution we can reframe debates of thought and action The purpose is to explain the wide variety of environmental worldviews their origins commonalities points of contention and their implications for the modern environmental movement In three parts covering the origins evolution and future of environmentalism it offers instructors and students a framework on which to map theory case studies and classical literature It is shown that environmentalism can be described in terms of six human values utility stability equity beauty sanctity and morality and that these are deeply rooted in our biological and cultural origins In building this case the book draws upon ecology philosophy psychology history biology economics spirituality and aesthetics but rather than consider these all independently it integrates them to craft a mosaic narrative of our species and its home From our evolutionary origins a story emerges it is the story of humankind how we have come to threaten our own existence and why we seem to have such difficulty in acting together to ensure our common future Understanding our environmental problems in evolutionary terms gives us a way forward It suggests an environmentalism in which material views of human life include spirituality in which our anthropocentric behaviors incorporate ecological function and in which environmental problems are addressed by the intentional relation of humans to the nonhuman world and to one another Aimed at students taking courses in environmental studies the book brings clarity to a complex and at times confusing array of ideas and concepts of environmentalism

Man in Evolutionary Perspective C. Loring Brace, Seamus P. Metress, 1973 Today's pace of research and discovery in physical anthropology is so great that professional articles on the subject rapidly go out of date For example today's answers to the question What is man are framed in a perspective of geological time undreamed of little more than a dozen years ago This book of many recent articles attempts to meet the need of bringing together the latest pertinent research by exposing the reader to the work of anthropologists as well as influential work done by scholars in fields such as paleontology physiology and psychology The editors have structured this representative research in such a way as to bring a better understanding to the reader of human evolution The book considers the role man's primate relatives played and the limitations and insights gained from the evolutionary approach It also examines the direct evidence of the human past and the origin and meaning of differences in living humans Back cover New Explorations in the Economics of Technical Change Christopher Freeman, Luc Soete, 1990 Mass Media and the Environment David M.
