Dynamics Of Coral Communities Population And Community Biology Series:

Dynamics of Coral Communities R.H. Karlson, 2002-10-31 This book focuses on the dynamical processes influencing the structure of coral communities some of the most biologically diverse communities on earth A variety of biological and physical processes operating across an enormous range of spatiotemporal scales are highlighted e g niche partitioning biological interactions disturbance phenomena large scale tectonic eustatic climatic and oceanographic processes The focus on the community provides a framework for presenting some of the best examples from the literature using multiple taxonomic groups e g corals fishes encrusting invertebrates

Coral Reefs at the Crossroads Dennis K. Hubbard, Caroline S. Rogers, Jere H. Lipps, George D. Stanley, Jr., 2016-07-27 In this book contributors from diverse backgrounds take a first step toward an integrated view of reefs and the significance of their recent decline More than any other earth system coral reefs sit at a disciplinary crossroads Most recently they have reached another crossroads fundamental changes in their bio physical structure greater than those of previous centuries or even millennia Effective strategies to mitigate recent trends will require an approach that embraces the myriad perspectives from across the scientific landscape but will also need a mechanism to transform scientific understanding into social will and political implementation

Competition P.A. Keddy, 2012-12-06 Competition is one of the most important factors controlling the distribution and abundance of living creatures Sperm cells racing up reproductive tracts beetle larvae battling inside single seeds birds defending territories and trees interfering with the light available to neighbours are all engaged in competition for limited resources Along with predation and mutualism competition is one of the three major biological forces that assemble living communities Recent experimental work much of it only from the last few decades has enhanced human knowledge of the prevalence of competition in nature There are acacia trees that use ants to damage vines beetles that compete in arenas for access to dung balls tadpoles that apparently poison their neighbours birds that smash the eggs of potential competitors and plants that associate with fungi in order to increase access to soil resources While intended as an up to date reference work on the state of this branch of ecology the many non technical examples will make interesting reading for those with a general interest in nature Greatly expanded from the first prize winning edition there are entirely new chapters including one on resources and another on competition gradients in nature The author freely ranges across all major taxonomic groups in search of evidence The question of whether competition occurs is no longer useful the author maintains rather the challenge is to determine when and where each kind of competition is important in natural systems For this reason variants of competition such as intensity asymmetry and hierarchies are singled out for particular attention The book concludes with the difficulties of finding general principles in complex ecological communities and illustrates the limitations on knowledge that arise out of the biased conduct of scientists themselves Competition can be found elsewhere in living systems other than ecological communities at sub microscopic scales in the interactions of enzymes and neural pathways and over large geographic areas in the spread of human populations and contrasting ideas about the world Human societies are therefore also examined for evidence of the kinds of competition found among other living organisms Using an array of historical examples including Biblical conflicts the use of noblemen s sons in the Crusades the Viking raids in Europe strategic bombing campaigns in the Second World War and ethnic battles of the Balkans the book illustrates how most of the aspects of competition illustrated with plants and animals can be extended to the interactions of human beings and their societies Ecology of Shallow
