

In order to reap the benefits of ECDIS as an official aid to avoid groundings, maximizing the safety of navigation when it is properly configured, the term of safe waters has been enriched to fulfil traditional navigational standards with device's advantages, such as safety depth/contour, look-ahead abilities and alarm generation.

The following picture shows how the safety depth/contour value is being affected from several factors.

The ECDIS safety settings depended on the navigation area and depth of waters, as follows:

Important notes

Shallow waters – when the depth of water is less than twice the ship's dynamic draft.

Safety contour and Safety Depth = Ship's dynamic draft + Required UKC (as per UKC policy) + CATZOC depth correction – HoT (time depended)*

*As required for a specific entry into a port or a transit. Otherwise, the lowest tide, where the vessel can safely navigate in compliance with the required UKC as per UKC policy for that area, must be used).

Shallow contour and deep contour are not necessary to be set for such areas in order to safeguard confusion or a congested ECDIS display; only the safety depth and safety contour must be displayed and must be handled as No-Go-Area border.

Two colors mode must be used accordingly.

Deep waters – when the depth of water is equal or greater than twice the ship's dynamic draft.

Shallow contour= the next shallowest contour from the set safety contour

Safety Contour and Safety Depth = Ship's dynamic draft + 20% of ship's breadth

Deep Contour = Twice the ship's dynamic draft. If this results in the deep contour coincident with the safety contour, the next deeper contour from the set safety contour must be chosen.

Four colors mode must be used accordingly.
