Environmental Transitions Transformation And Ecological Defense In Central And Eastern Europe:

Environmental Transitions Petr Pavlínek, John Pickles, 2000 Environmental Transitions is a detailed and comprehensive account of the environmental changes in Central and Eastern Europe both during and after state socialism. The book illustrates how transformations after 1989 have brought major environmental improvements as well as new environmental problems. Environmental Transitions contains detailed case studies from the region including an historical geographical analysis of the environmental change, health impacts of environmental degradation, the role of environmental issues during the anti-communist revolutions, legislative reform, the effects of transition on environmental quality after 1989. Politics and the Environment in Eastern Europe Eszter Krasznai Kovacs, 2021-07-28 Europe remains divided between east and west with differences caused and worsened by uneven economic and political development. Amid these divisions, the environment has become a key battleground. The condition and sustainability of environmental resources are interlinked with systems of governance and power from local to EU levels. Key challenges in the eastern European region today include increasingly authoritarian forms of government that threaten the operations and very existence of civil society groups, the importation of locally contested conservation and environmental programmes that were designed elsewhere, and a resurgence in cultural nationalism that prescribes and normalises exclusionary nation-building myths. This volume draws together essays by early career academic researchers from across eastern Europe. Engaging with the critical tools of political ecology, its contributors provide a hitherto overlooked perspective on the current fate and reception of environmentalism in the region. It asks how emergent forms of environmentalism have been received, how these movements and perspectives have redefined landscapes, and what the subtler effects of new regulatory regimes on communities and environment-dependent livelihoods have been. Arranged in three sections with case studies from Czechia, Hungary, Lithuania, Poland, Romania, and Serbia, this collection develops anthropological views on the processes and consequences of the politicisation of the environment. It is valuable reading for human geographers, social and cultural historians, political ecologists, social movement, and government scholars, political scientists, and specialists on Europe and European Union politics.

Environmental Policy in the EU Andrew Jordan, 2012-04-27 This second and fully revised edition brings together some of the most influential work on the theory and practice of contemporary EU environmental policy. Comprising five comprehensive parts, it includes in-depth case studies of contemporary policy issues such as climate change, genetically modified organisms, and trans-Atlantic relations, as well as an assessment of how well the EU is responding to new challenges such as enlargement, environmental policy integration, and sustainability. The book's aim is to look forward and ask whether the EU is prepared or even able to respond to the new governance challenges posed by the perceived need to use new policy instruments and processes to mainstream environmental thinking in all EU policy sectors.

Socioeconomic and Environmental Impacts on Agriculture in the New Europe Serban Scriciu, 2011-03-13 This book looks at agriculture and the environment placed within the dynamic context of post communist societal change and entry into the European Union EU Scriciu explores developments in eleven Central and Eastern European CEE countries and argues for agriculture's natural place in these societies The history of these countries is significant in how it has shaped the institutions and influenced the outcomes In many cases during communism agriculture was not considered a strategically An ecological consciousness did not figure high on the agendas of authoritarian regimes After 1990 some post communist farm economies progressed slower than others and environmental pressures mostly diminished with agricultural restructuring In parts of CEE increases in numbers of low input small farms have resulted in some though largely unintended ecological benefits A dual environmental challenge has nevertheless surfaced On one hand environmentally unsustainable practices have been attributed to some low input farming On the other hand risks of farm over intensification and resource overexploitation are on the rise Also environmental regulatory and institutional frameworks are not always effectively in place EU membership is not creating the anticipated benefits for farm growth There are a number of systemic structural barriers preventing many farmers from drawing on Common Agricultural Policy incentives and support The presence of many vulnerable poor farms is clearly problematic particularly economically However small scale farms could be made more acceptable and profitable by ensuring EU policies acknowledge their value and by building institutions to support alternative farm growth strategies aside from the traditional European model of individual corporate farm expansion The voluntary uptake of grassroots rural cooperation and farm associations may represent such an alternative Future European farm policy reforms need to reach the small and vulnerable and better tackle issues of farm equity poverty and agricultural sustainability in the new Europe This is a timely contribution as this type of transition has just begun This book should be of use to students and researchers looking at agricultural and environmental economics post communist rural societal change European integration and the Common Agricultural Policy

The Routledge Handbook of Environmental Justice Ryan Holifield, Jayajit Chakraborty, Gordon Walker, 2017-09-14 The Routledge Handbook of Environmental Justice presents an extensive and cutting edge introduction to the diverse rapidly growing body of research on pressing issues of environmental justice and injustice With wide ranging discussion of current debates controversies and questions in the history theory and methods of environmental justice research contributed by over 90 leading social scientists natural scientists humanists and scholars from professional disciplines from six continents it is an essential resource both for newcomers to this research and for experienced scholars and practitioners The chapters of this volume examine the roots of environmental justice activism lay out and assess key theories and approaches and consider the many different substantive issues that have been the subject of activism empirical research and policy development throughout the world The Handbook features critical reviews of quantitative qualitative and mixed methodological approaches and explicitly addresses interdisciplinarity transdisciplinarity and engaged research Instead of adopting a narrow regional focus it tackles substantive issues and presents perspectives from political and cultural systems across the world as well as addressing activism for environmental justice at the global scale Its chapters do not simply review the state of the art but also propose new conceptual frameworks and directions for research policy and practice Providing detailed but accessible overviews of the complex varied dimensions of environmental justice and injustice the Handbook is an essential guide and reference not only for researchers engaged with environmental justice but also for undergraduate and graduate teaching and for policymakers and activists

Environmental Policy in the European Union Andrew Jordan, 2005 This text brings together work on the full range of EU environmental policy Incorporating a range of case studies it explores the links between levels of governance and the environment in a number of policy areas Environment & Planning, 2001

Post-Soviet Affairs, 2003 State and Society in Post-Socialist Economies John Pickles, 2008-01-17 State and Society in Post Socialist Economies provides detailed examinations of a range of state society relations in post socialism It examines ways that the state regulates or sets the parameters for regulating capitalist practices and the ways in which the state interacts with social groups focused on changing state policy The cases cover the full range of post socialist countries from the Central European new members of the EU to those in Eastern Europe as well as a range of countries of the former Soviet Union including a progressive country Lithuania and a reform resister Belarus
