OK, so this is a pretty broad generalization but it has a degree of truth to it. You don't have to be a great artist or be capable of drawing up precise plans from all angles to be able to make anything from your imagination and those people who tell you otherwise are being unrealistic about the hobby and, moreover, damn near silly.

For this you don't even need to draw a sketch, just start offering parts up to each other and see what looks good. Remember, you don't have to use the whole part. You can use it, turn it upside down, join the halves in a different way and this can produce interesting and aesthetically pleasing shapes without you much effort. What you will need, though, is a clear indication of what the finished model will be. What are you building? Is it a shelter? Is it a food vehicle? Is it a lightbulb? Is it a battleship or fighter? Once you know what you are building design considerations become clearer.

Because vehicles are always presented in high-visibility colours, battleships are usually big, bristly and ugly, whereas civilian liners have an elegance and sophistication about them. So, again, military ships will have a utilitarian appearance with a lot of sharp angles for ease of construction, whereas a civilian vessel will have a lot more aesthetic appeal with curves.

And don't worry too far down reality. If you can't really tell what your creation is in a couple of seconds it doesn't really work as a design. Someone might say "What is this?" when they are viewing it, but when you explain the
