Yougesh Khatri,Luc Leruth,J. Piesse,2002-09 This paper measures corporate sector performance efficiency and empirically examines the role of corporate governance A stochastic frontier with inefficiency effects is fitted to a panel dataset of 31 of the largest nonfinancial companies listed on the Kuala Lumpur Stock Exchange for the period 1995 to 1999 Focusing specifically on the impact of the system of corporate governance and the level of control on firm level performance results show an underlying vulnerability in these firms exacerbated by their reliance on bank based borrowing and a highly concentrated shareholding structure with complex cross holdings Furthermore debt does not appear to have the control features present in outsider systems of corporate governance The Effect of Markups on the Exchange Rate Exposure of Stock Returns George Allayannis,Jane Ihrig,2000 This paper examines how to properly specify and test for factors that affect the exchange rate exposure of stock returns We develop a theoretical model which explicitly identifies three channels of exposure An industry s exposure increases 1 by greater competitiveness in the market where its final output is sold 2 the interaction of greater competitiveness in its export market and a larger share of exports in production and 3 the interaction of less competitiveness in its imported input market and the smaller the share of imports in production Using a sample of 82 U S manufacturing industries at the 4 digit SIC level classified in 18 2 digit industry groups between 1979 and 1995 we estimate exchange rate exposure as suggested by our model We find that 4 out of 18 industry groups are significantly exposed to exchange rate movements through at least one channel of exposure On average a 1 percent appreciation of the dollar decreases the return of the average industry by 0.13 percent Consistent with our model s predictions as an industry s markups fall rise its exchange rate exposure increases decreases Foreign Exchange Rates and Corporate Performance
