

I don't know what to write about. I repeat. I do ~~not~~ know what to write about. Maybe keep going on that for... right. Or only if you like that way.
— David Christian, Journal guide

Students are learning many strategies that help them generate ideas to write about. Below are a few strategies your child has learned. When they are a task, suggest some of the following to help them get over their writer's block.

- Make lists of interesting people or significant places, all special moments in your life, like the first time you did a thing, your first love, etc. When you have a list without ideas, choose one to write about.
- Start collecting family stories. If you've heard a particular family story again and again, write it down, record it, especially if you're told it you don't know many details. It's best to be family members who tell it and who share stories about it.
- Look around! When you see a thing or think your life, like your favorite toy, a particular beach, an old picture, what comes to your mind?

Explaining Writers Workshop To Parents:

Workshops Work! Patricia Broderick Zaballo, 2012-11-01 A writer's workshop is simply a gathering in which writers come together to share their writing and offer one another feedback. Workshops are fairly easy to facilitate yet nearly magical in their ability to inspire kids to write. Workshops Work offers parents all the nitty gritty details you'll need to start up your own workshop. It's a comprehensive guide covering everything from how long a meeting might run to how to encourage a positive atmosphere. Workshops Work is written for parents who may not have much writing training themselves but who want to make writing a fun engaging experience for their kids. Whether you're a homeschooling parent trying to make writing more meaningful for your child or the parent of a schooled child seeking a less standards based more creative writing experience for him or her a writer's workshop may be just what you're looking for. Workshops Work will show you how to make writer's workshops an essential enjoyable part of your child's development as a writer. Building a Writing

She supplies more than 50 mini lessons organized by their classroom function to help you explicitly teach foundational literacy skills during writer's workshop or whole class and small group reading instruction. Dierking encourages you to make the most of the writing-reading connection by thinking about some basic questions when you're crafting your literacy instruction: How can I connect the conversations in reading and writing workshop? What can I learn about the readers in my classroom through their writing? What can my students learn about reading through writing? How can I teach young writers to support their readers? How can I teach readers how to use a writer's supports intentionally?
