1. The first step in the process of the development of the organization is the identification of the organization's mission and vision. This is a critical step as it sets the direction for the organization and provides a clear focus for all activities. The mission statement should be concise and clear, and the vision statement should be aspirational and motivating.

2. The second step is to conduct a thorough analysis of the organization's internal and external environment. This involves identifying the organization's strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats. This analysis is essential for developing a strategic plan that is based on a realistic assessment of the organization's capabilities and the market conditions.

3. The third step is to develop a strategic plan. This plan should outline the organization's long-term goals and the strategies to achieve them. It should also include a detailed budget and a timeline for implementation. The strategic plan should be flexible enough to allow for changes in response to changing market conditions.

4. The fourth step is to implement the strategic plan. This involves putting the plan into action and monitoring progress. It is important to have a system in place to track the organization's performance against its goals and to make adjustments as needed. Regular communication and reporting are essential for successful implementation.

5. The fifth and final step is to evaluate the organization's performance. This involves assessing the organization's progress towards its goals and identifying areas for improvement. This evaluation should be conducted regularly and should involve all levels of the organization. The results of the evaluation should be used to inform the development of the next strategic plan.
