Therapeutic Strategies in Primary and Metastatic Liver Cancer Christian Herfarth, Peter Schlag, Peter Hohenberger, 2012-12-06 Primary and metastasizing malignant carcinoma of the liver represent a challenge to both the diagnostician and the therapist For this reason it appears a worthwhile task to review the current status of knowledge about the treatment of primary and metastasizing tumors of the liver The question is whether modern diagnostic methods and new therapeutic concepts can help to improve the prospects of treatment Of particular interest is the role played by therapeutic procedures directly involving the liver Thus it is equally important to discuss the pathophysiological and pharmacological bases for a modern therapy concept as it is to consider diagnostic issues and possible definitions of stages of progression Therapeutic concepts comprise systemic therapy and organ related therapeutic methods including surgical resection changes in the blood supply regional selective chemotherapy and other localized or regional highly specialized forms of therapy This survey of the various possibilities in the field is meant too to stimulate further scientific research given that methods of treatment are as yet by no means standardized but are still in the stage of clinical research where experimental models can find an application The only well established operative procedure is surgery on the isolated liver tumor In this area specialized techniques and various intraoperative procedures are discussed There is a wealth of information available on all the topics covered

Liver Cancer Felix Lee, 2005 Primary liver cancer occurs when cancerous malignant cells begin to grow in the tissues of liver Although many cancers are on the decline the incidence of primary liver cancer in the United States increased over 70 percent between 1975 and 1995 The increase is linked to rising rates of hepatitis B and C infection the leading causes of liver cancer Far more common than primary liver cancer however is cancer that occurs when tumours from other parts of the body spread metastasize to the liver The liver is especially vulnerable to invasion by tumour cells and with the exception of the lymph nodes is the most common site of metastasis There are two main kinds of liver cancer Hepatoma and cholangiocarcinoma Heptoma is cancer of the hepatocytes The main functioning liver cell Hepatoma is primary liver cancer Hepatoma usually grows in the liver as a ball like tumour invading the normal tissue surrounding it Cancer of the bile duct cells is called cholangiocarcinoma

Cholangiocarcinoma originates in the bile ducts and is often caused by infestation with the liver fluke Clonorchis a parasite. The cancer grows along the bile ducts in sheets or lines and is difficult to find on X ray studies. This book presents the latest new research developments from around the world in the field of liver cancer. Multidisciplinary Management of Liver Metastases in Colorectal Cancer Xinyu Qin, Jianmin Xu, Yunshi Zhong, 2016-12-12. This book focuses on early diagnosis and multidisciplinary treatment which is the key to preventing the occurrence of the liver metastases in colorectal cancer and to increasing the resection rate of the liver metastasis foci and the 5 year survival after surgery. This book is divided into five parts: the introduction, basics, diagnosis, treatment and prevention. It has 20 chapters in total covering the latest advances in colorectal cancer, liver metastases, epidemiology, pathogenesis, molecular diagnostics, marker screening, imaging technology, surgery, chemotherapy and prevention etc. It provides professionals with up to date and comprehensive information on colorectal liver metastases. This book is relevant for senior surgeons and physicians working in oncology, general surgery, chemotherapy, digestive medicine, liver medicine and hepatic surgery. Primary and Metastatic Liver Tumors Kenneth Cardona, Shishir K. Maithel, 2018-10-01. The incidence of primary and metastatic liver tumors is rising and the therapeutic armamentarium for these tumors is expanding at a rapid pace. Surgery remains the primary treatment modality for these tumors. With improvements in our perioperative management and operative techniques a larger proportion of patients are able to undergo potentially curative liver surgery. In addition indications and criteria for liver transplantation for both primary and metastatic liver tumors are constantly expanding. Unfortunately many patients are not amenable to surgical resection or liver transplantation and therefore alternative liver directed therapies are routinely being implemented as part of complex multidisciplinary treatment models. However these models are continually evolving as these regional therapeutic options continue to expand. New embolization agents and techniques as well as improvements in radiation delivery are all evolving in the background of improvement in systemic and targeted therapy options for these tumors. This book provides a comprehensive state of the art review of the current state of liver directed therapy for malignant liver tumors. The book will serve as a valuable resource for not only surgeons and clinicians but for researchers with an interest in malignant liver tumors. The book focuses on the therapeutic approach to primary and metastatic tumors providing an up to date review on surgical liver anatomy and new imaging techniques as well as patient selection and technical consideration for resection and transplantation. In addition the book provides new insight into novel and evolving therapies in the areas of transarterial therapy such as i bland embolization ii chemoembolization and iii radioembolization as well as new radiation techniques including SBRT and proton therapy. Furthermore the expanding role of hepatic artery infusion therapy in primary malignant tumors is highlighted. Finally integration of all these regional therapy options with upcoming and evolving systemic and targeted therapy regimens are integrated and discussed. This book will serve as a very useful resource for clinicians and researchers managing and treating patients with these challenging malignancies. It provides a concise yet comprehensive summary of the current status of the field that will help guide patient management and stimulate investigative efforts All chapters are written by experts in their fields and include the most up to date scientific and clinical information Liver Cancer Benjamin J. Valverde,2011 Molecular Genetics of Liver Neoplasia Xin Wei Wang,Joe W. Grisham,Snorri S.
