Distant Cousin Recirculation:

Distant Cousin Al Past, 2011-02-22 Volume 5 of the Distant Cousin series Is it possible to ever really know another person After all parents who know their offspring better than anyone are often surprised by what their children do and who they become If a parent should have her own secrets such as being from another planet perhaps and have made a new life in an unfamiliar world wouldn't we expect her to be occasionally surprised maybe even astonished by her own children Ana Darcy Mendez certainly has her own problems and secrets but then so do her teenage twins When the twins first independent steps toward adulthood entangle each one in danger their mother disappears on the other side of the world Will luck family ties and love be enough to allow Ana's increasingly complicated family to survive intact "If Each Comes Halfway" Kathryn S. March, 2018-08-06 For twenty five years Kathryn S March has collected the life stories of the women of a Buddhist Tamang farming community in Nepal In If Each Comes Halfway she shows the process by which she and Tamang women reached across their cultural differences to find common ground March allows the women's own words to paint a vivid portrait of their highland home Because Tamang women frequently told their stories by singing poetic songs in the middle of their conversations with March each book includes a CD of traditional songs not recorded elsewhere Striking photographs of the Tamang people accent the book's written accounts and the CD's musical examples In conversation and song the Tamang open their hearts and minds as they address a broad range of topics life in extended households women's property issues wage employment and out migration sexism and troubled relations with other ethnic groups Young women reflect on uncertainties Middle aged women discuss obligations Older women speak poignantly and bluntly about weariness and waiting to die The goal of March's approach to ethnography is to place Tamang women in control of how their stories are told and allow an unusually intimate glimpse into their world Report Jet Propulsion Laboratory (U.S.), 1959
