Bryderup,2008-12-01 Policymakers in welfare democracies throughout the world are raising questions as to whether welfare systems deliver what the public expects and focus attention on increasing costs Social workers need more evidence and knowledge about an increasing diversity of social work practices Users of social welfare are increasingly individualized and made responsible for choosing and delivering their own service through contracts and this makes politicians social workers and users more interested in evidence and knowledge about social services even though these interests are often conflicting These tendencies might be part of the reasons why the evaluation of social work practice seems to be characterized at present by a variety and diversity of research methods approaches and theories

The Evidence of Language William Foxwell Albright,Thomas Oden Lambdin,1966 While it is difficult to establish a close relationship between language form and the racial or cultural characteristics of its speakers an intimate relationship does exist between culture and language content The study of language content needs no special justification since the written records of antiquity are our most valuable source of information concerning the peoples and civilizations which form the object of historical investigation But language as a formal structure like the tools and institutions of a society represents a kind of transmitted organism and as such falls into the category of data which can be ordered in typologically related sequences Thus for the historian who is interested primarily in tracing interacting continuities the study of the history and development of a language apart from its use as a vehicle for oral and written traditions provides useful and sometimes unique evidence of otherwise undiscernible ethnic and cultural affiliations
