Chen-Ju Chen, 2010-09-17 Subsidies to fisheries have been in existence for centuries However these remained outside the spotlight of the international community until the turn of this century when the negative effects that fisheries subsidies have on international trade the environment and sustainable development became increasingly clear As a result the Doha Round Negotiations set the parameters for an effective fisheries subsidies regime WTO Members thus embarked in intensive negotiations with the collaboration of various international organizations These negotiations culminated with publication of the legal text of the Chairman of the Negotiating Group on Rules in 2007 which reflects to a large extent the mandates of the Ministerial Conferences and reconciles the diverse interests of the negotiators The EU as a major WTO Member and with its own Common Fisheries Policy which has been in effect for a number of years can serve as the basis for comparison and improvement of the proposed regulations Supporting the Implementation of New WTO Rules on Fisheries

Policy Making Patrick ten Brink, 2012-09-10 The Economics of Ecosystems and Biodiversity TEEB study is a major international initiative drawing attention to local national and global economic benefits of biodiversity to highlight the growing costs of biodiversity loss and ecosystem degradation the benefits of investing in natural capital and to draw together expertise from the fields of science economics and policy to enable practical actions Drawing on a team of more than one hundred authors and reviewers this book demonstrates the value of ecosystems and biodiversity to the economy society and individuals It underlines the urgency of strategic policy making and action at national and international levels and presents a rich evidence base of policies and instruments in use around the world and a wide range of innovative solutions It highlights the need for new public policy to reflect the appreciation that public goods and social benefits are often overlooked and that we need a transition to decision making which integrates the many values of nature across policy sectors It explores the range of instruments to reward those offering ecosystem service benefits such as water provision and climate regulation It looks at fiscal and regulatory instruments to reduce the incentives of those running down our natural capital and at reforming subsidies such that they respond to current and future priorities The authors also consider two major areas of investment in natural capital protected areas and investment in restoration Overall the book underlines the needs and ways to transform our approach to natural capital and demonstrates how we can practically take into account the value of ecosystems and biodiversity in policy decisions at national and international levels to promote the protection of our environment and contribute to a sustainable economy and to the wellbeing of societies

Trade and Environment Governance at the World Trade Organization Committee on Trade and Environment

Manuel Teehankee, 2020-06-11 In the opinion of many the most crucial issue confronting the world today lies in achieving a sustainable nexus among global trade economic development and the environment This book written by a prominent diplomat with extensive direct experience in this field presents a much needed critical perspective on the conflict of norms among the three policy regimes focusing on the dilemma of reconciling approaches regarding harmonized global governance and a more diverse community based approach It is the first and only in depth treatment to systematically study a series of deliberations in the World Trade Organization s Committee on Trade and Environment CTE highlighting perspectives taken by both developed and developing economies The book demonstrates that the CTE s contributions to the evolving trade and environment policy framework have been contrary to popular perception both substantial and relevant In his review of how the particular characteristics of twenty key work outputs of the CTE impact current practice in trade and environment policy discussions the author discusses such key issues and topics as the following a singular harmonized global governance framework versus the centrifugal force of community based localized or regional solutions that emphasize diversity and multifaceted institution building drawbacks and continuing relevance of the CTE Work Agenda issues related to carbon intellectual property rights and services market access for environmental goods requirements for environmental purposes relating to products including standards and technical regulations packaging labeling and recycling and ways forward for combining global regimes with local solutions in an environmental context Given the urgent need for making economic policies more coherent with sustainability and environmental goals and for overcoming the ongoing stalemate between developed and developing countries on this matter this book is sure to be warmly welcomed by policy makers and negotiators in the areas of both trade and environment as well as by academics theorists and experts in the field of global governance interested in formulating practical approaches to trade and environment governance and minimizing potential policy conflicts
