Lee, Richard Heywood Daly, Richard Daly, 1999-12-16 Hunting and gathering is humanity's first and most successful adaptation Until 12 000 years ago all humanity lived this way Surprisingly in an increasingly urbanized and technological world dozens of hunting and gathering societies have persisted and thrive worldwide resilient in the face of change their ancient ways now combined with the trappings of modernity The Encyclopedia is divided into three parts The first contains case studies by leading experts of over fifty hunting and gathering peoples in seven major world regions There is a general introduction and an archaeological overview for each region Part II contains thematic essays on prehistory social life gender music and art health religion and indigenous knowledge The final part surveys the complex histories of hunter gatherers encounters with colonialism and the state and their ongoing struggles for dignity and human rights as part of the worldwide movement of indigenous peoples Nebraskaland , 1994 Living with the Flood Samantha Paul, Kevin Colls, Henry Chapman, 2015-11-30 The site at Mill Lane Sawston represents millennia of human activity within a dynamic and changing landscape setting River valleys have been a focus for human activity since the early Holocene and in addition to providing abundant archaeological evidence for this activity the proximity to water also highlights the potential for the preservation of both archaeological remains and palaeoenvironmental source material However human activity within river valleys also commonly bridges areas of both wetland and dryland ecological zones which are often approached using quite different archaeological methods and which present considerable differences in levels of archaeological visibility and preservation The site at Mill Lane offered an uncommon opportunity to explore the interface between these two types of environment Here we present the results of the study of a wetland dryland interface on the edge of palaeochannels of the River Cam in Cambridgeshire Through the integrated archaeological and palaeoenvironmental analysis of a site on the western edge of Sawston a detailed picture of life

Collins, Marvin Kay, 2010-07-22 Around 11 000 years ago a Paleoindian culture known to us as Clovis occupied much of North America. Considered to be among the continent's earliest human inhabitants the Clovis peoples were probably nomadic hunters and gatherers whose remaining traces include camp sites and caches of goods stored for utilitarian or ritual purposes. This book offers the first comprehensive study of a little known aspect of Clovis culture stone blade technology. Michael Collins introduces the topic with a close look at the nature of blades and the techniques of their manufacture followed by a discussion of the full spectrum of Clovis lithic technology and how blade production relates to the production of other stone tools. He then provides a full report of the discovery and examination of fourteen blades found in 1988 in the Keven Davis Cache in Navarro County Texas. Collins also presents a comparative study of known and presumed Clovis blades from many sites discusses the Clovis peoples caching practices and considers what lithic technology and caching behavior can add to our knowledge of Clovis lifeways. These findings will be important reading for both specialists and amateurs who are piecing together the puzzle of the peopling of the Americas since the manufacture of blades is a trait that Clovis peoples shared with the Upper Paleolithic peoples in Europe and northern Asia. Daily Life in Pre-Columbian Native America Clarissa Confer, 2008 Draws on historical and archaeological research to describe what life was like in North America in the time before Columbus landed exploring the people's religious beliefs social structure hunting housing food dress and traditions.
