Dynamics Conflict Northern Ireland Emancipation:

The Dynamics of Conflict in Northern Ireland Joseph Ruane, Jennifer Todd, 1996-11-13 This book offers a uniquely comprehensive account of the conflict in Northern Ireland providing a rigorous analysis of its dynamics and present structure and proposing a new approach to its resolution It deals with historical process communal relations ideology politics economics and culture and with the wider British Irish and international contexts It reveals at once the enormous complexity of the conflict and shows how it is generated by a particular system of relationships which can be precisely and clearly described The book proposes an emancipatory approach to the resolution of the conflict conceived as the dismantling of this system of relationships Although radical this approach is already implicit in the converging understandings of the British and Irish governments of the causes of conflict The authors argue that only much more determined pursuit of an emancipatory approach will allow an agreed political settlement to emerge

Transforming conflict through social and economic development Sandra Buchanan, 2016-05-16 Transforming conflict through social and economic development examines lessons learned from the Northern Ireland and Border Counties conflict transformation process through social and economic development and their consequent impacts and implications for practice and policymaking with a range of functional recommendations produced for other regions emerging from and seeking to transform violent conflict It provides for the first time a comprehensive assessment of the region's transformation activity largely amongst grassroots actors enabled by a number of specific funding programmes namely the International Fund for Ireland Peace I II and III and INTERREG I II and IIIA These programmes have been responsible for a huge increase in grassroots practice which to date has attracted virtually no academic analysis this book seeks to fill this gap In focusing on the politics of the socioeconomic activities that underpinned the elite negotiations of the peace process key theoretical transformation concepts are firstly explored followed by an examination of the social and economic context of Northern Ireland and the border counties The three programmes and their impacts are then assessed before considering what policy lessons can be learned and what recommendations can be made for practice This is underpinned by a range of semi structured interviews and the author s own experience as a project promoter through these programmes in the border counties for more than a decade The book will be essential reading for students practitioners and policymakers in the fields of peace and conflict studies conflict transformation peacebuilding post agreement reconstruction and the political economy of conflict and those interested in contemporary developments in the Northern Ireland peace process Managing Terrorism and Insurgency Cameron I. Crouch, 2009-09-10 This book examines how governments can weaken the regenerative capabilities of terrorist and insurgent groups The exploration of this question takes the form of a two tier examination of three insurgent actors whose capacity to regenerate weakened in the past the Front de lib ration du Qu bec FLQ of Canada the Movimiento de Liberaci n Nacional Tupamaros MLN T of Uruguay and the Provisional Irish Republican Army PIRA of Northern Ireland during the mid 1970s At the first level of its examination the book investigates the extent to which the regenerative capacities of the FLQ MLN T and PIRA weakened because of an increase in attrition and a decrease in recruitment The primary objectives of this analysis are to uncover whether a declining intake of recruits played a lesser equal or greater role than a burgeoning loss of personnel in weakening the capacities to regenerate of the three insurgent actors and in turn to shed greater light on the broader validity of the prevailing view in conflict studies that a decrease in recruitment is more important than an increase in attrition in effecting the corrosion of an insurgent actor s capacity to regenerate At the second level of its exploration the book assesses the effectiveness of five of the most prominent policy prescriptions in the literature and insurgent recruitment and attrition ameliorating grievances selective repression discrediting insurgent ideology improving intelligence collection and restricting civil liberties This book will be of much interest to students of terrorism and counter terrorism conflict studies strategic studies and security studies in general Cameron Crouch is currently an Analyst at Allen Consulting Group an Australian economics and public policy consulting firm He has a PhD from the Strategic and Defence Studies Centre at The Australian National University Ireland and

Attracted to Conflict: Dynamic Foundations of Destructive Social Relations Robin R. Vallacher, Peter T. Coleman, Andrzej Nowak, Lan Bui-Wrzosinska, Larry Liebovitch, Katharina Kugler, Andrea Bartoli, 2014-07-08 Conflict is inherent in virtually every aspect of human relations from sport to parliamentary democracy from fashion in the arts to paradigmatic challenges in the sciences and from economic activity to intimate relationships Yet it can become among the most serious social problems humans face when it loses its constructive features and becomes protracted over time with no obvious means of resolution This book addresses the subject of intractable social conflict from a new vantage point Here these types of conflict represent self organizing phenomena emerging quite naturally from the ongoing dynamics in human interaction at any scale from the interpersonal to the international Using the universal language and computational framework of nonlinear dynamical systems theory in combination with recent insights from social psychology intractable conflict is understood as a system locked in special attractor states that constrain the thoughts and actions of the parties to the conflict. The emergence and maintenance of attractors for conflict can be described by means of formal models that incorporate the results of computer simulations, experiments, field research, and archival analyses. Multi-disciplinary research reflecting these approaches provides encouraging support for the dynamical systems perspective. Importantly, this text presents new views on conflict resolution. In contrast to traditional approaches that tend to focus on basic short-lived cause-effect relations, the dynamical perspective emphasizes the temporal patterns and potential for emergence in destructive relations. Attractor deconstruction entails restoring complexity to a conflict scenario by isolating elements or changing the feedback loops among them. The creation of a latent attractor trades on the tendency toward multi-stability in dynamical systems and entails the consolidation of incongruent positive elements into a coherent structure. In the bifurcation scenario, factors are identified that can change the number and types of attractors in a conflict scenario. The implementation of these strategies may hold the key to unlocking intractable conflict, creating the potential for constructive social relations.

Ethnic Conflict Neal G. Jesse, Kristen P. Williams, 2011. Politics

Regional and Ethnic Conflicts Judy Carter, George Irani, Vamik D. Volkan, 2009. Regional and Ethnic Conflicts: Perspectives from the Front Lines provides an alternative vantage point that contributes new perspectives to the study of ethno-political conflict. The interest and insights students gain from this book into how complex ethno-political conflicts can be mitigated, resolved, and prevented give hope to the future. From a pedagogical perspective, this text is designed to expose students to alternative perspectives. It adds realism and insight to students' understanding of distal ethno-political conflicts. Contributors were purposely asked to discuss a range of factors to bring to light the complexity of ethno-political conflict. Their chapters are meant to prod students to internalize the importance of analyzing and understanding ethno-political conflicts from multiple perspectives.

Political Leadership and the Northern Ireland Peace Process Cathy Gormley-Heenan, 2007-02-15. This book argues that much of the literature on political leadership has made little meaningful connection with the issues of peace, conflict, and divided societies. In providing a critical interpretation of political leadership during the Northern Ireland peace process, Cathy Gormley-Heenan shows how the leadership lens offers insights not offered by conventional analyses of peacemaking processes. Using interviews with political elites in Northern Ireland, the book discusses the confusions, contradictions, and chameleonic nature of leadership and its role, capacity, and effect.

British-Irish Relations and Northern Ireland Brendan O'Duffy, 2007. This book examines the evolution of British-Irish relations since 1921 and applies theories from political and social sciences, including international relations, to the Irish-Northern Irish case. The book includes the generation and analysis of primary data on violence and constitutional debate, the analysis of primary sources such as state papers and elite interviews with British and Irish officials, representatives of constitutional political parties in Northern Ireland, and leaders and activists of republican and loyalist parties/organisations. Part 1 looks at how the attempt to regulate the Irish nationalist challenge to the British state through dominion status for the Irish Free State and partition impacted on governance in both jurisdictions The re opening of the Northern Irish Question in the late 1960s is then analysed to demonstrate the continued primacy of opposing claims to national self determination and their impact on subsidiary levels of conflict The final part covering the year 1985 to the present then demonstrates how the relative equalization of national status reflected in the bi national inter governmental relationship has been successful in regulating conflict by integrating vertically the bi nationality at state governmental and societal levels Finally implications of the British Irish approach are developed as contributions to the comparative theory and practice of ethno national conflict regulation

Europe's Old States in the New World Order Joseph Ruane,Jennifer Todd,Anne Mandeville,2003 Much attention has been paid to globalization yet little has been focused on the relationship between the national and sub national levels of politics This publication has separate sections on the state in transition on regionalism nationalism and separatism and on the security forces and the maintenance of order The three states chosen Britain France and Spain have historical similarities as ex imperial Atlantic seaboard states with weighty historical and institutional traditions But they also differ in their institutions in their centre periphery relations and in their varying responses to the new phase of change The authors assess the new constitutional configurations in each state decentralisation devolution or autonomous governments and analyse the effect on the peripheries and the maintenance of order The book also includes chapters on conflict in Northern Ireland and the Spanish Basque country and discussion of nationalist identity and assertion in the three countries
